

Career Development Resources

Student Veterans have unique skills and experiences that translate into valuable career competencies.

Cornell Career Services (CCS) has the resources to help you translate your military service into civilian terms, prepare application materials, or learn how to conduct a job/internship search.

CCS Resources

- College career offices and the career office in 103 Barnes Hall offer drop-ins and individual appointments with career advisors for assistance with your career development. Call or stop by to set something up.
- The Career Library in Barnes Hall has many resources on various topics for students to use. Students can perform an online search of the library through career.cornell.edu. . . Resources. Students should also use the Link Library under the Resources page to explore over 800 career-focused websites.
- Handshake is a web-based service offered by Cornell Career Services that includes job and internship postings, alumni events, career workshops, employer contacts, and more. Log in through the CCS website at career.cornell.edu.
- OptimalResume™ provides resume and cover letter samples and templates to help you create your application materials. You can also practice interviewing skills. Create an account at cornell.optimalresume.com.

Campus Resources

- Cornell's Student Veterans Advocate serves as a liaison to campus resources and supports student veterans as they transition to Cornell through programming and engagement: Barbara Thompson, 101 Day Hall, bt349@cornell.edu.
- Cornell's Military Community compiles resources and services for students, faculty, staff, and alumni veterans at military.cornell.edu.
- Cornell University Veterans Association (CUVA) provides professional, academic, and social support for prospective and current undergraduate student veterans at orgsync.com/113721/chapter.
